

Discussion Agenda — Finalizing the Agreement

For Michael Zara & Lenny Giamanco · Zara Injury Law · July 22, 2026 · Goal: resolve today, sign by Friday

Lenny, Mike — thank you for the revised package. It reflects real care, and the large majority of it is exactly what we discussed. To make our call efficient, here is everything I'd like to cover, in order. None of it changes the deal we've shaped — it makes sure the agreement works day-to-day for both sides so the program succeeds.

Already landed — no discussion needed: term-only IP with the Exhibit C carve-out · Exhibit D side-work approval · 30-day notice both ways · mutual indemnification and non-disparagement · the expanded seven-platform bonus · Semrush access through reconciliation · pro-rata bonus adjustment on budget changes. Thank you — these were handled just as we discussed.

DISCUSSION TOPICS

1 · PAYMENT MECHANICS

Keep obligations and pay on separate tracks

As drafted, Section 7(l) ties each semi-monthly payment to documentation status, and an Exhibit E shortfall can cascade quickly. I'd like performance issues handled the way we handle everything else: written notice and a cure period — while earned base pay stays unconditional. The obligations themselves are fine; it's only the payment linkage I'd like to remove.

2 · SCOPE & VOLUME

Guarantee the highest quality the investment funds — keep the full program as your option

The Social Engine plan I presented is the program's full performance at scale. Rather than guarantee that ceiling from month one, I propose we guarantee a focused launch — the three highest-value platforms at full cadence (~350–400 posts/month), 3–4 premium hero ads, FL and GA SEO first — delivered at the standard Mike's name deserves. The full seven-platform program stays available to the Firm as a defined option once the engine is live and proven: a service schedule we price together, or folded into renewal. You pre-buy nothing unproven, and every dollar of the bonus structure stays as-is. The one-page comparison I've prepared walks through this.

3 · CONTENT APPROVALS

Approve at the template level so daily volume never stalls

Section 9A(b) allows per-piece pre-approval with no turnaround defined. My plan already solves this the compliant way: pre-approved templates, claim language, and disclaimers per content pillar — approved once, up front. For any individual piece the Firm wants to review, a two-business-day window, and content awaiting review shouldn't count against the monthly minimums. This protects the Firm's compliance standards and the posting cadence at the same time.

4 · RAMP & DEPENDENCIES

Adopt the build timeline we planned, and pause the clock on Firm-side items

The plan schedules weeks 1–2 for setup and full volume from day 30. I'd like Exhibit E to reflect that ramp (month 1 build, month 2 at half volume, full from month 3), and to toll any commitment that's waiting on a Firm-side item — account access, credentials, TikTok/X tooling under 5(c), budget or content approvals. My deadlines should start when the dependencies land.

5 · PUBLISHING INFRASTRUCTURE

Confirm the delivery pipeline

I publish through my multi-client scheduling tools (the 7(i) carve-out) with every account, all content, and all metrics living in Firm-owned accounts and the Firm holding full backend access — 9A(e) just needs a line confirming this so the two sections don't conflict. My tooling covers every platform except TikTok and X; those two would come under the Firm-provided tooling in 5(c).

6 · RESTRICTIVE COVENANT SCOPE

Right-size the non-compete

Twelve months across six states — including Georgia, where I live — plus vendors serving PI firms reaches further than this engagement needs. I proposed personal-injury firms, Florida, six months, and I'd like to understand what the Firm most needs protected so we can land somewhere that genuinely covers it. The non-solicit stays as written.

7 · HOUSEKEEPING

Quick confirmations

- Attach the SEO & IT Roadmap to the package (Exhibits A and E bind to it).
- Scope Covered Parties (1(a)) to the Firm and Money Mike marketing.
- Extend the 13(b) cure period to Section 6/7 matters other than willful ones.
- Lock the bonus baselines in writing at kickoff (four markets and social aren't yet tracked).
- Confirm status of the retainer-audit scanner engagement referenced in Exhibit C.

Where this leaves us: I've already drafted the Exhibit E language reflecting topics 1–5 and can send it right after our call — thirty minutes together should resolve everything on this page, and I'm prepared to sign the same day the revised package comes back. Friday works.

Looking forward to it — and to getting Money Mike everywhere.
